REFEREE SHOULD HAVE MADE MEN FIGHT AFTER CALLING OFF BETS

Mike Paton Right in Guarding Honest Bettors, but He Should Have Made McCarthy and Cordell Fight It Out on Merits—Crowd Could Have Judged

BY LAURENCE REDINGTON.

WHEN Mike Paton called all bets off in the third round of the McCarthy-Cordell fiasco Saturday afternoon, he took a firm stand for honest sport that met with the hearty approval of the fans. When he climbed out of the ring and allowed the contestants to quit, however, he took a rather questionable course. There have been many instances in ring history where an honest referee, seeing or hearing something fishy about a fight, has called off the bets, but in such cases it is usual to make the men fight it out on their merits.

"Gentlemen, I do not think that these men are fighting on the square. All bets are called off," said Paton, while the astonished boxers looked blankly at each other. If he had added:

"They must fight it out on merit and this audience can judge whether it is getting a real run for its money, or whether these boys are playing Honolulu people for suckers," he would have made still more of a hit.

But Mike was so disgusted with the whole performance that he grabbed his coat and left the grounds as soon as possible.

"Cordell could lick McCarthy with one hand tied," Paton told a few of the ringers who waylaid him for an explanation. "He left himself wideopen at every lead, and didn't take advantage of his chances to hit McCarthy. The men were talking to each other in the clinches, and the whole thing, including the alleged foul, looked like a frame-up to me. There was nothing to do but stop it."

Looked Queer.

The fight certainly left an unpleasant taste. It was no fight at all from the start, and Cordell so much out of weighed his opponent that he could have bullied him all around the ring had he so chosen. McCarthy weighed in at 3 o'clock, about two hours before ring time, and scaled 153 pounds in his ordinary clothes. This would make his fighting weight about 145. Cordell forfeited his weight money and didn't show up at all. It is certain, however, that he wasn't anywhere near the 155 pounds he was supposed to make. In the ring he looked to be nearer 170 than 160, and this handicap was far too much to be conceded any fighter of his ability. Cordell is a shifty boxer, with a hard kick in both hands, and had he cut loose he would have torn McCarthy to ribbons. But he wouldn't cut loose, and that's just what caused the fiasco.

Both the fighters were indignant, or made a good bluff at being, over the turn events had taken.

"I never fought crooked in my life, and I'd have given anything not to have this happen," McCarthy told me in his dressing room while the Roman mob was howling outside the bars. "I don't know what Paton meant, for if it was fixed I didn't even know about it. Cordell certainly fouled me, and I should have been given the decision right there."

"Cordell had much the same statement to make.

"I'm a square fighter," he said. McCarthy is a tough boy, and we were going fifteen rounds. I didn't want to take any chances, and I was feeling him out. I would have opened up in a round or so.

Odds Unnatural.

The betting had a queer look to it, and this probably influenced Paton in his action as much as the men's actual showing in the ring. Up to Thursday Cordell ruled a steady 7 to 10 favorite, but suddenly a lot of McCarthy money showed, and this beat the price down to evens, with hard work to find Cordell backers at the last, although the fact that he didn't make weight should have shortened his price. McCarthy to win was the tip of the rounds, and strictly on fighting this didn't seem reasonable.

Promoter Ayres was much cut up over the incident, but he says he's going to try and forget it, and that he will vouch for the moral character of any fellow that fights for him in future. He doesn't believe McCarthy was concerned in the frame, and says that Johnny will be given another chance, but Cordell's name has been scratched off his calling list.

Bauersocks Real Thing.

Denny Leary, the scrapping phenom of Fort de Russy, was a much surprised man when he ran up against Trooper Bauersocks, of the Fifth Cavalry, in a bout that went the full eight rounds and ended with Bauersocks the winner by a mile. Leary was game to the core, and was given a big hand when he left the ring. He took an awful beating about the face, and one lamp went out early in the game.

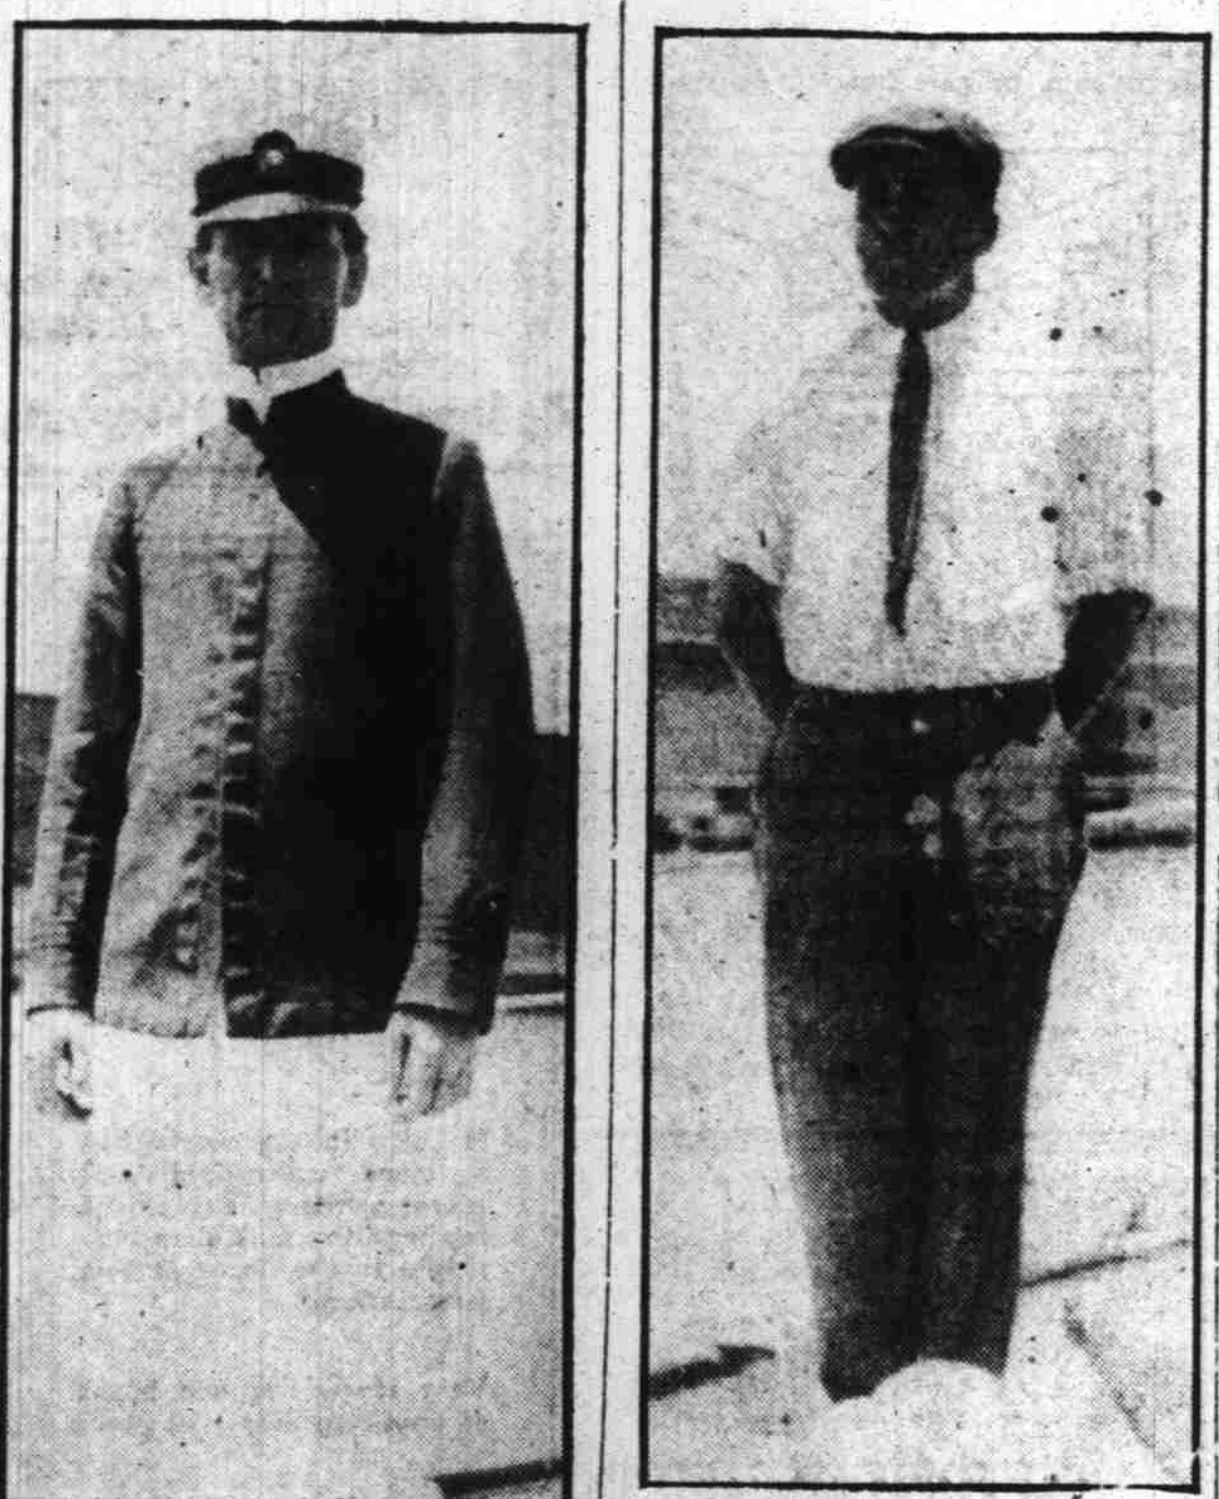

In the sixth round Leary was all but out, the cavalryman having him helpless on the ropes three separate times. He covered up and "Socks" ricked his head from side to side without being able to put over the sleep producer. The winner gets the chance to fight Ben de Mello in Hilo the night of July 3rd. Bauersocks came through the mill without a mark, but his opponent will carry mementoes for some days.

Moriarty Makes Good.

Moriarty, the fast lightweight who is almost a feather, got a decision over Kid Baker, of Seattle in six rounds. He did two-thirds of the leading, and showed more knowledge of the game than his opponent. Still, if Referee Eddie Madison had called it a draw, there would have been a number in favor of the decision.

Yamamoto, the Jap who took a decision from Plug Milne at the second show, scored a clean knockout on Kid Cabral. It happened in the second round, when the Jap put over a short arm hook that connected flush with the point of the jaw. The gong saved him at the count of eight, but the sponge responded to the next bell, instead of Mr. Cabral.

FAST AND FURIOUS FUN PLANNED FOR YACHTSMEN FROM MAINLAND

The visiting yachtsmen will be given a good time as their constitutions stand during their stay in Honolulu, if plans of the officers of the Hawaii Yacht Club are carried out. The program arranged will not begin until the last vessel of those entered is in port, but after that the fun will be fast and furious.

Judge Cooper, president of the Hawaii Yacht Club plans to give a luau for the visitors which will eclipse anything of the kind held in Hawaii in many moons. Then there is the fa-

YACHTS READY TO RACE FOR MAUI CUP

In perfect readiness for the starting gun, the four yachts which will compete in the 100 mile race to Maui for the Maui Challenge Cup are resting lazily in their berths today.

The start in the race, which is the second of its kind for the season will be made tomorrow afternoon at 5:30 o'clock from the Healan Yacht and Boat Club. The finish will be in Kahului Bay.

The yachts entered for this contest under the auspices of the Hawaii Yacht Club, and their owners who will sail them, are as follows:

being passed between Burns and Reeve, but finally made a dive for the bag. Burns threw high to Dobsky, but the latter made a beauty stop and just managed to touch his man.

A. Desha should have touched second for a force out instead of throwing wild to first on Sumner's grounder in the second. Slow headwork.

Just after Williams took the slab Sumner hit one right through the box that was too hot to handle. The ball went to Inman, who had taken center, and bounced off his legs. When he recovered it he overthrew to the backstop, letting in a run. Unpleasant happenings came fast with Bill for a while.

Some delightful Scotch music was rendered during the game. Or was it Chinese?

Reeve made a beautiful scoop of Dreier's grounder in the fifth, but Winne took his foot off the bag to get the peg.

W. Myers did some fast fielding.

En Sue went to the outfield in the seventh. He would have played the game through, but was late reporting.

Hayes made a sensational running one-handed catch of Kentnor's long drive to right, picking the ball right off the fence.

FOR CLEAN, HONEST SPORT

The Honolulu Star-Bulletin stands for clean sport and plenty of it in Hawaii. Few other places on the sporting map offer the opportunities for outdoor games and recreations that Honolulu does, for here custom alone sets the seasons, it being possible to enjoy every form of sport practically the year round.

The Honolulu Star-Bulletin's sporting department aims to report accurately and fully all the happenings in local sport, and to keep its readers in touch with world happenings in the sporting line. The truth about sport and sportsmen is never a knock, and readers of this paper will get the truth, even if it is necessary to tread on sore toes to publish it.

In a field where so many sports flourish, the cooperation of secretaries of clubs and others interested directly in their promotion and management is necessary to accurate reporting, and these officials are invited to send in schedules of games, tournaments and competitions, so that they may be given desirable publicity.

SAWED OFF SHORT

Nigel Jackson is out with a challenge to Vincent Gomes and John Hau, to run a match race from Haleiwa to Honolulu, for a side bet of $50, winner take all. All three men have been winners of the Haleiwa marathon, and "Jack" thinks a three-cornered affair would be a good card. His idea is to start some Sunday morning in time to finish at Athletic Park when the baseball crowd is there.

The Moana Hotel tennis courts are about the best in the city for accurate playing. They are a trifle hard on the feet, but the well-packed surface insures a true bounce. The courts are well patronized just now.

Baseballers of the Colorado think it tough luck that the cruiser won't be in port over the Fourth. Had she remained the team would have been given a chance to play an exhibition game on the holiday.

One lone woman, arrayed in spotless white sat in the grandstand in the center of a group of soldiers throughout Saturday's proceedings. The female in the gathering of fight fans, she came early with her military escort and seemed to take an enthusiastic, though undemonstrative interest in every bout.

Norman Courtney, secretary to the Governor, was there, and so far forgot his dignity as to cheer wildly during the third preliminary, afterward claiming credit for coaching Bauersocks to victory.

All the Irishmen in town should have been at Athletic Park Saturday. In the ring the Emerald Isle was well represented, its sons being Leary, McCarthy and Moriarty, with Mike Paton as referee of the main go.

Palama won the championship of the senior division of the Boys' Clubs' Baseball League by defeating Kakaako by a 10 to 4 score, in a hotly-contested game Sunday. Up to the meeting both teams were undefeated, and partisan feeling ran high.

It is anybody's race in the junior division, for the win of Beretania over Kauluwa, by 4 to 0, puts the former team in the running for first place, on even terms with Kauluwa.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.
Stars 4, Hawaiis 0.
Portuguese 6, Asahis 5.

THE Stars turned a neat little trick yesterday when they blanked the Hawaiis in nine fast frames, scoring four runs and boosting themselves into a tie for first place with the J. A. C's. The first half of the Oahu Senior League series is now panned, and the leaders will have to break the deadlock with a single game. After dropping two out of the first three games of the season, Barney Joy and his bunch of sparklers announced that they were out after the flag, and that they would win the first half. At that time the team looked like a false alarm, but the boys started a get-together campaign, with the above-chronicled result.

Yesterday's game was cleanly played, and the Hawaiis were never threatening. Barney Joy topped the bill for the winners, and while the opposing sluggers often found his shants, they couldn't get them away from the fielders, and the big fellow only had a brace of safe ones chalked up against him, neither going for an extra base. Bill Inman of Panahou was the opposing twirler at the opening of hostilities, but he was as wild as a minah bird, and after hitting two men in succession in the fourth, was yanked out to make place for Bill Williams. The latter went in with one gone and two men on bases, and the two first batters who faced him hit safely. The next fanned and the next was retired on an infield play, three runs being the total damage. Inman was very unsteady, walking five and hitting three in the three and a half innings he pitched. At that, though, the Stars weren't hitting him, and not a single safety was garnered off his delivery.

Stars Started Well.

The Stars showed they meant business from the call of time. Kentnor, first man up, got life on an infield error and went to second on a passed ball. Burns was soaked in the ribs, and Haule Sumner was hit by his own batted ball and retired. Joy walked, filling the sacks. Joe Fernandez lined one down to short, and Alex Desha handled it perfectly, winging it to Raphael just in time to nip Kentnor at the rubber. Dobsky walked, but was forced at second by Schuman. One run.

There was no more scoring until the fourth, when Inman hit Winne, and then gave Burns a second dose of the same medicine, after Kentnor, who came up between, had fled to left. This was the point where Williams took charge, the Stars' three runs in the frame being the last scores of the game.

Second Baseman La Mere won the second game for the Portuguese with a four-ply wallop that cleared the fence, retrieving his spotted playing earlier in the game. He smashed the first ball pitched and it tipped the fence by inches.

The first half of the game was listless, and while the P. A. C. nine was accumulating five runs the Asahis accumulated goose-eggs and errors. Catcher Murakami helped the other side to gather runs with a wild three-base peg over second that cleaned the sacks. The Japanese showed in-and-out base running, throwing away many chances, but Noda put his team in the running in the eighth with a steal of second that caught all the P. A. C. men napping. The Japanese pushed three across in this inning, tying the score at five-all, and looked like winners until La Mere's home run.

Ornelas played a crack game in right field, pulling down several hard ones, and the Japanese shortstop pulled off a feature throw in the eighth by grabbing a high fly and doubling La Mere off first with a beautiful line throw from deep short into first base's hands. The score:

MANY IN MARATHON

According to Nigel Jackson, who is hustling the arrangements for the Fourth of July marathon from Moanua to Kapiolani Park, about 25 men are sure starters, and as the distance is about nine miles, more of these should be able to finish, and to finish well bunched at that. He says that there is a lot of interest among the long-distance fraternity, and that many runners who didn't feel themselves equal to the terrific grind from Haleiwa to Waikiki three weeks ago have decided to try their mettle over this shorter route.

The winner of the race, besides a prize valued at $40, will secure the first leg on a challenge cup which has been offered by Charles Chillingworth, which must be won twice to become the personal property of any athlete. Senator Chillingworth's idea is to make the race an annual Fourth of July feature, and if anyone is lucky enough to grab the cup off with two straight wins, it is thought that someone will be found to replenish the supply. It's a safe bet that as good a sportsman as Chillingworth won't see the race die out for want of a trophy, once it gets well started.

Practically all the men who ran the Haleiwa marathon will be on hand Thursday. John Hau, the Hawaiian who won the last event, will have a try at the shorter distance. Jackson will also run.

THESE SWELTERING DAYS

Warm weather suggests a change of climate and surroundings. Most persons wish to get away from the 80s they have grown tired of in a twelve month. The golf links and the sea beach at Haleiwa say "Come" and the hotel management is there to welcome. Six dollars and fifty cents pays all expenses of a trip to and from that beautiful place and for the hotel accommodations from Saturday afternoon until Sunday night.

GOLF PLAY POSTPONED

The golf tournament which was scheduled for the morning of the Fourth has been postponed until next Sunday, owing to the fact that there are so many counter attractions in the way of sports and celebrations.

The tournament is down as a novelty contest, and while its exact conditions have not been announced yet, it is believed that the flag contest, which proved so popular a few months ago, will be repeated. In this style of play, each man is allowed a certain number of strokes, based from scratch on his club handicap. When he has played the allotted number he sticks a flag marked with his name on the spot where the ball rests after the last shot. Naturally, the man who gets his flag furthest round the course is the winner. R. R. Reidford won the last flag tournament, getting to the twentieth green on his final stroke.

Play will start at 10 o'clock Sunday, and players desiring to enter must be on time.

BINGLES AND BOUNDERS

Heine Raphael made his first appearance on the field for six weeks, having returned from the Coast yesterday. He got quite a hand when he donned the mask, and celebrated his comeback by spearing Winne's difficult foul fly right off the players' bench in the second.

Inman's father was rooting for him in the grandstand, and this may have had something to do with the young collegian's overanxiety to make good.

Barney pulled off a very foxy fielding stunt in the fourth, when Hamauku put a sharp grounder between the box and first base. Joy ran over and got it, but too late to nail his man. He went through the motions of throwing to first and then turned quick as a flash and shot it to second, where W. Meyer, struck by the play, had overrun the base. He was caught between second and third with the ball off the fence.
